S&P 500, Nasdaq Post Strongest Monthly Gains Since 2020

United States

Stock Market

US stocks rose on Thursday, with the S&P 500 and Nasdaq recording their biggest monthly gains since 2020, as strong earnings overshadowed oil supply concerns. The S&P 500 advanced 1% to 7,209, while the Nasdaq climbed 0.9% to 27,430, both hitting intraday highs. The Dow Jones surged 790 points, finishing the month up over 7%, its strongest performance since November 2024, led by Caterpillar's 9.8% jump after reporting higher Q1 profits. Tech shares were mixed: Meta and Microsoft fell 7% and 4%, respectively, on concerns over AI-related spending, while Alphabet soared 10% after its cloud unit posted a record quarter. Intel recorded its best month ever on optimism over its new 18A chips and rising CPU demand from agentic AI. Eli Lilly surged nearly 10% after raising its profit forecast. After the market closed, Apple reported fiscal Q2 earnings and revenue that topped estimates. On the data front, US Q1 GDP grew 2%, jobless claims hit a 1969 low, and PCE inflation surged to 3.5%.

Uruguay Trade Deficit Widens in March

Uruguay

Balance of Trade

Uruguay's trade deficit widened to $417.3 million in March 2026 from $243.4 million a year earlier, as imports grew faster than exports. Imports surged 28% year-on-year to $1.3 billion, driven by a 30.5% jump in intermediate goods. Purchases of consumer goods rose 27.7%, while capital goods imports increased 15.5%. Meanwhile, exports rose 14.5% to $895.7 million. Sales of utilities climbed 68.3% to $614 million, while exports of primary products increased 20.2% and manufactured goods rose 12.2%.

Mexican Peso Steady in Late April

Mexico

Currency

The Mexican peso was at 17.5, holding near a three-week low as weak GDP data backed the Bank of Mexico's recent dovish position. The Mexican GDP contracted by 0.8% on the first quarter of 2026, a sharper contraction than expectations of a 0.5% decrease. The data indicated broad pressures on the economy as both manufacturing and services contracted sharply, while extractive industries slumped despite the increase in oil and silver prices. The result increased bets that Banxico is due to extend its

Canada Currency

The Canadian dollar strengthened to 1.36 per USD, a one-month high, on support from a weaker greenback as markets assessed the outlook for the Bank of Canada. The US dollar pulled back as energy prices halted their rally and drove emerging markets to limit their aggressive pivot to the greenback. On top of that, an acceleration in domestic wages also supported the loonie. Meanwhile, data showed
