Week Ahead - Apr 6th

Country List

Calendar

Next week, the conflict with Iran will remain in focus as it enters its sixth week. Traders will continue to assess prospects for de-escalation, as well as any concrete developments toward reopening the Strait of Hormuz, following ongoing back-and-forth in recent weeks. In the US, attention will turn to the FOMC minutes, CPI data, the ISM Services PMI, the preliminary Michigan Consumer Sentiment reading, and the PCE report. Investors will also look to fresh corporate earnings, including results from Delta Air Lines, as the earnings season gathers momentum mid-month. Elsewhere, key releases include China's CPI, Germany's factory orders, and the monetary policy decision from the Reserve Bank of India.

US Services Activity Unexpectedly Contracts

United States

Services PMI

The S&P Global US Services PMI fell to 49.8 in March of 2026 from 51.7 in the previous month, revised lower from the preliminary estimate of 51.1, signaling the first contraction in the sector in over three years. The decline came amid the weakest growth in new business since April 2024, as firms cited reduced client confidence and softer demand, partly linked to the impact of the Middle East conflict. Export activity also deteriorated further, with tariffs and geopolitical tensions weighing on trade. Business sentiment weakened to a five-month low as rising energy costs raised concerns over inflation and consumer spending. Employment edged lower for the first time since December, reflecting caution among firms. Input cost inflation accelerated to its highest level this year, driven largely by higher energy prices, while companies continued to pass on rising costs to clients, pushing selling price inflation to an eight-month high.

United States

Composite PMI

The S&P Global US Composite PMI was revised sharply lower to 50.3 in March 2026 from a preliminary 51.4, the lowest reading since September 2023, compared to 51.9 in February. The reading pointed to a sharper slowdown in private sector activity, which nearly stalled, as a renewed contraction in service sector activity (49.8 vs 51.7) offset a stronger uptick in manufacturing output. Also, growth in new work eased to a three-month low, while business confidence in the coming 12 months was the most subdued since last October. In turn, private sector employment fell for the first time in just over a year. Input price inflation, meanwhile, accelerated to the highest seen in 2026 so far whilst output charges rose at a

DXY Rises Above 100

United States

Currency

The dollar index edged above 100 on Friday after stronger than expected US jobs data reinforced expectations that the Federal Reserve will keep interest rates higher for longer. Nonfarm payrolls increased by 178,000 in March, the strongest gain since late 2024, while the unemployment rate unexpectedly fell to 4.3%, partly reflecting a decline in labor force participation. The data pointed to a stabilizing labor market even as the Iran conflict began. Meanwhile, geopolitical tensions remained in focus as President Donald Trump escalated rhetoric against Iran, threatening strikes on key infrastructure, while reports indicated further attacks across the Gulf region. Rising energy prices are adding to inflation concerns, keeping markets cautious. Trading activity is likely to remain subdued due to the Good Friday holiday, with US equity markets closed and bond trading on a shortened schedule.

US Futures Fall on Good Friday

United States

Stock Market

Futures on the three major US stock indexes were down around 0.2% on Friday, as markets remained closed for the Easter holiday, with investors digesting a stronger-than-expected jobs report and developments in the Middle East. The US economy added 178K jobs in March, nearly three times market forecasts of 60K while the unemployment rate edged down to 4.3% and wage growth slowed. The data reinforced expectations that the Fed will keep the federal funds rate unchanged this year. Investors also continued to assess developments in the Middle East. US President Trump intensified his rhetoric against Iran, threatening to target the country's infrastructure, including bridges and power plants, while Iran reportedly struck additional sites in Arab Gulf states. On the week, the major averages posted gains, with the S&P 500 rising 3.4%, the Dow Jones adding nearly 3% and the Nasdaq soaring 4.4%.

US Nonfarm Payrolls Rise to 178K, Highest Since December 2024

United States

Non Farm Payrolls

The US economy added 178K jobs in March 2026, the most since December 2024, following a revised decline of 133K in February, when a strike in the healthcare sector weighed on employment. The figure came in well above market expectations of 60K. Job gains were concentrated in healthcare (76K), mostly ambulatory health care services (54K), reflecting an increase of 35K in offices of physicians as workers returned from a strike. Construction added 26K jobs following weather-related declines during the winter. Transportation and warehousing created 21K jobs, manufacturing added 15K and employment in social assistance continued its upward trend (14K). On the other hand, federal government employment continued to decline (-18K) and declines were also seen in financial activities (-15K). The change in payrolls for January was revised up by 34K to 160K, and the change for February was revised down by 41K to -133K. Employment combined for the two months is 7K lower than early reported.
